

Telebriefing:
THE FLOODS IN PAKISTAN AND THE ROLE OF HUMAN RIGHTS FUNDERS
September 1, 2010

Speakers:

- Kate Kroeger, Director of Grants, American Jewish World Service
- Anasuya Sengupta, Asia and Oceania Regional Program Director, Global Fund for Women
- Moeed Yusuf, South Asia Adviser, United States Institute of Peace

Description:

Pakistan is facing the worst natural disaster in living memory. Up to 20 million people throughout the country are directly affected by monsoonal flooding.

Despite the magnitude of the disaster, why is public, international, and institutional support relatively low and slow in coming? What is the role of human rights grantmakers in responding to the disaster? What are some strategies for applying a human rights lens to humanitarian relief?
