

Burma: Opportunities and Caveats for Human Rights Funders

Tuesday, December 11, 2011

11:00-12:00 EST

16:00-17:00 GMT

22:30-23:30 MMT

Speakers:

- Director of the Asia Program, American Jewish World Service
- Program Officer, Open Society Foundations

Description:

In this telebriefing, funders studied the state of transition in Burma and how human rights funders can effectively and strategically support pressing priorities.

On this call, participants:

- Scanned the current political situation and funding landscape and implications for human rights funders
- Explored the human rights priorities, gaps, opportunities, and entry points for funders
- Gained an understanding of caveats that funders seeking to enter this context should bear in mind

No notes available for this session.