

Soha Abdelaty, Deputy Director, Egyptian Initiative for Personal Rights (EIPR)

Ms. Soha Abdelaty is Deputy Director of the Egyptian Initiative for Personal Rights (EIPR), where her portfolio includes the strategic leadership of the organization's research teams. Prior to joining the EIPR, Ms. Abdelaty worked at Amnesty International in London, where she held the post of researcher on Iraq, continuing the same post-conflict research she had started first through her Master's of Law degree at the University of Nottingham and then as Iraq Project Officer at the University's Human Rights Law Centre. With a background in media and international relations, Ms. Abdelaty also spent a number of years working as a diplomatic correspondent at the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.