

Chris Cole has been researching and campaigning on the issue of armed drones since 2009. Chris founded Drone Wars UK (www.dronewars.net), a small British NGO, to undertake research, education and campaigning on the use of Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs) and the wider issue of remote warfare. It is now recognized internationally as a credible and reliable source of information on drones and unmanned technology.

Chris is the co-author of Convenient Killing: Armed Drones and the Playstation Mentality (2010), convener of the Drones Campaign Network and regularly speaks to conferences, public meetings and the media on drones, targeted killing and remote warfare. Chris is formerly Director of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and Coordinator of Campaign Against Arms Trade (CAAT). He lives in Oxford with his wife Virginia, and their three children.

Naureen Shah advocates for U.S. government practices that respect and uphold human rights, with a current focus on law enforcement practices related to counterterrorism, global surveillance and national security. She is a frequent commentator on U.S. human rights practices and national security policies. She has recently been quoted in coverage by the New York Times, LA Times and NBC News among other outlets. She has recently appeared on the BBC, PRI's The World, Al

Jazeera America, WAMU D.C.'s Kojo Nnamdi Show, KCRW Los Angeles' To The Point, WHYY Philadelphia's Radio Times and several international and US programs.

Her articles include Drones: From Bad Habit to Terrible Policy (Reuters, Jan. 2014); Kindle for the Drone Debate (Roll Call, Jan. 2014); Times for the Truth about 'Targeted Killings' (The Guardian, Oct. 22, 2013); The FBI's Surveillance Power in the aftermath of Boston (The Hill, May 17, 2013); End Covert Drone War (USA Today, Feb. 7, 2013); New director John Brennan must kill the CIA's drone assassination policy (Guardian, Jan. 8, 2013); President Obama's Dangerous Drone Legacy (USA Today, Oct. 1, 2012); The CIA's Unchecked Quasi-Military Role (Politico, May 10, 2012).

She is the co-author of major reports on national security and human rights: Illusion of Justice: Human Rights Abuses in US Terrorism Prosecutions; The Civilian Impact of Drones; and Counting Drone Strike Deaths.

Naureen holds a B.S. from Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism, cum laude. She holds a J.D. from Columbia Law School, where she was a James Kent Scholar and Harlan Fiske Stone scholar, and received the Lowenstein Fellowship awarded to outstanding graduates pursuing public interest law.